Freedom by Design, a national, non-profit community service program, fostered by the American Institute of Architecture Students (AIAS), utilizes the talents of architecture students through modest design and construction solutions. Modifications are made to enhance the homes of low-income, elderly and disabled individuals. Our priority is improving the safety, comfort and dignity of the home's occupants. For example, construction of ramps, installation of grab bars, widening of doorways, etc.

reminder---You do not have to have any experience to participate as a volunteer
